

the story of a traveling preacher's wife who beamed into homes with a message of hope...and stole the country's heart

In the 1970s as cable television comes into American homes for the first time, families gather to watch a young preacher, Jim Bakker, and his charismatic wife, Tammy Faye. Together, they build a nationwide congregation that puts the fun back into faith. But, even as Tammy sparkles on screen, jealous rivals plot behind the scenes, threatened by her popularity and her resolve to lead with love.

Wrapped in a jubilant and deliriously fun score that could only come from Elton John, with lyrics by Scissor Sisters' Jake Shears, a book by Olivier Award-winning playwright James Graham, and directed by Olivier Award winner Rupert Goold, TAMMY FAYE shines a dazzling light on the generous, loving, often lonely individual behind the illustrious lashes.

Two-time Olivier Award winner Katie Brayben (Tammy Faye in London; Beautiful: The Carole King Musical) and Olivier and Tony Award® nominee Andrew Rannells (Tammy Faye in London; Falsettos; The Book of Mormon) lead the cast, reprising their acclaimed West End performances.
