Edward Albee's
Three Tall Women

Edward Albee's award-winning drama premieres on Broadway starring two-time Academy Award® winner Glenda Jackson (A Touch of Class; Women in Love), returning after her captivating reappearance last season on London's West End after a 25-year absence. Joining her will be Tony Award® winner, Academy Award® nominee and Emmy winner Laurie Metcalf (A Doll's House, Part 2; Lady Bird; Roseanne) and Tony nominee Alison Pill (The Lieutenant of Inishmore).

Multiple Tony nominee and winner Joe Mantello (The Humans; The Normal Heart; Assassins; Take Me Out; Angels in America) directs this production, which won the 1994 Pulitzer Prize for Drama, the New York Drama Critics Circle Award and the Outer Critics Circle Award for Best Play.

THREE TALL WOMEN revolves around three women of different ages who reflect on their lives and their relationships with their families. This "spellbinding masterpiece" (Time Magazine) has been praised as "essential viewing." (The New York Times)

"The best Edward Albee has ever given us.
An extraordinarily brilliant play."
